Who We Are

Burn school participants after a day of field training.

By Julia Chapman.

The Chippewa Savannas Chapter is a grassroots community dedicated to protecting the rare prairies, oak savannas and barrens near you. We actively steward these threatened places through hands-on land management and provide education about these rare ecosystems.

Whether you're looking to kickstart a career in conservation or just stay active outside, there's a place for you on our crew. Join us for a field trip to learn about native wildlife, gain experience with restoration equipment and techniques at a work party, and build connections with your community.

Nature Near You

The sandy soils and river corridors of the Chippewa Valley are home to a dense concentration of rare plants and animals. Unique habitats like oak barrens, remnant sand prairies and railroad prairies have escaped development, but need our help to flourish.

Whatever your interests or experience, we invite you to explore native ecosystems near you and join a close-knit crew of conservationists as we work to restore the land. Volunteer opportunities include collecting and sowing seed, prescribed burning, clearing invasive species, environmental education and serving on the Chapter leadership team. Visit our website or scan the QR code on the back panel to get involved.
